REUNION SCENES AND PEOPLE HERE

Noted Generals of Confederate Army to Participate in Parade To-Day.

GOSSIP ABOUT DELEGATES

Many Well-Known Names on the List of Those Now in Richmond.

No feature of the great parade to-day will attract more attention than the presence of a number of distinguished generals of the Confederate States Army. General Lee and possibly some others will be in the saddle, but the majority will go in private carriages, gladly furnished by patriotic residents of Richmond. So far as can be ascertained the following is a complete list of those who are now in the city and who will participate in the exercises to-day.

Lieutenant-General Stephen D. Lee, of Mississippi.
Lieutenant-General Simon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky.
Major-General E. P. Alexander, of Tennessee.
Major-General Pickens D. Bowles, of Florida.
Major-General George P. Harrison, of Alabama.
Major-General M. C. Butler, of South Carolina.
Major-General William L. Cabell, of Texas.
Major-General William McComb, of Virginia.
Major-General William R. Cox, of Virginia.
Major-General Marcus T. Wright, of District of Columbia.
Major-General Samuel G. French, of New Jersey.
Major-General L. L. Lomax, of Pennsylvania.
Brigadier-General R. D. Johnson, of Alabama.
Brigadier-General Richard M. Gano, of Texas.
Brigadier-General T. M. Logan, of Virginia.
Brigadier-General George W. Gordon, of Tennessee.
Brigadier-General Eppa Hunton, of Virginia.
Brigadier-General Thomas T. Munford, of Virginia.
Brigadier-General Clement A. Evans, of Georgia.
Brigadier-General Robert Lowry, of Mississippi.
Brigadier-General W. P. Roberts, of North Carolina.

One of the noblest Confederate officers appearing at the seventeenth reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, now being held in Richmond, Va., is Mrs. George Miltenberger, of St. Louis, Mo., aid-de-camp and assistant surgeon-general on the staff of General Stephen D. Lee, commanding the United Confederate Veterans.

In her perfectly-fitting suit of fine Confederate uniform, specially designed and fashioned with the official insignia of the wearer as to stars, braid and buttons, with plumed hat, crimson sash and sword and military boots of patent leather, Colonel Miltenberger will make a brilliant figure as she rides in the procession of to-day.

The fair colonel, who fits her role perfectly and proves to be a niece, now becoming an attire the Confederate gray may be, is at the Jefferson Hotel. In her party are Commander Paul A. Furr, of Montana and the Northwest Division; Major Ellis, of Bozeman, Montana; Colonel Gurigues, of Portland, Ore., and Adjutant-General George Miltenberger, of St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Owen, wife of Dr. Thomas M. Owen, of Montgomery, Ala., command-in-chief of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans, who arrived yesterday, is ill at the Richmond Hotel, where the couple are quarantined for the week. The services of a physician and a trained nurse were invoked yesterday. The commander-in-chief has the sympathy of his comrades in the illness of his wife.

One of the unique features of the reunion will be the presence and participation in the parades of Company A, of Memphis, an organization of veterans who will appear clad in the full uniform of the Confederate soldier, with arms and accoutrements in use during the days of '61 to '65. This unique organization will be accompanied by a drum corps and will drill in Hardee's tactics, the manual through which all the recruits of forty-six years ago had to be laboriously taken to fit them for the field. The spectacle presented by the Tennesseans will be peculiarly interesting to the men who went through the same experience years ago.

One of the greatest special trains that have arrived in the city for the reunion was that coming over the Cotton Belt and arriving here last night over the Norfolk and Western. It consisted of fourteen coaches, a solid Confederate train which attracted attention all along the route.

North Carolina will almost contest with Virginia the honor having the largest number of veterans in line to-day. All day yesterday the trains of the Southern Railway and the Coast Line were rolling in with North Carolina representatives. Raleigh, Henderson, Asheville, Greenville, and the Norfolk Camp, the L. O. Branch Camp, of Franklin, and numerous others arrived before dark and up to midnight others were almost constantly arriving.

FISHER'S

Wise Talks by the Office Boy

I see the German Emperor has been getting confidential with a friend of his, and telling him as how it is a thankless job to run an empire; that if he guesses right on how things should be done the critics say, "Who put him wise?" And if he guesses wrong they say, "Poor fellow; he couldn't be expected to know." Well, there's a hit-and-miss plan of running any kind of a business, and there's the know-how plan. You are "expected to know" all right in this store, and no "hit-and-miss" excuse goes. You're expected to get wise about the clothing before you buy, for goods well bought are half sold, but you've got to be very careful not to be half-sold in buying. The market is full of graft garments, faked worsteds and flat-iron stuff. If you buy right you'll sell right, and that's all there is to it, critics or no critics. Of course, there are critical times, and all classes are more critical than they used to be, that is what we like. The boss says, "Bring in the cranks. We are prepared for them." Really and truly, this store was never stocked so completely to suit all tastes as now. The boss says to tell you you're invited to see our handsome patterns and styles in Spring Suits. They're priced anywhere from $7.50 to $30.00.

arriving at one or another of the three railroad stations.

Mrs. M. C. Goodlett, the founder of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and who will be missed by every body, can only be at the reunion in spirit. She is greatly improved in health, and is still active in good works, but owing to some heart complications her physician advises quiet and avoidance of crowds and all kinds of excitement.

Miss Cameron Usina, of Savannah, Ga., whose father, Captain M. P. Usina, was a celebrated blockade runner during the War Between the States, will be the reunion guest of Mrs. N. V. Randolph at No. 611 East Franklin Street.

Miss Julia O'Connor, of New York, is the guest of Mrs. John Murphy, at the Chesterfield. Mrs. O'Connor, who belongs to Parker's Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, is the possessor of an exquisite contralto voice. She will go abroad this summer to continue her musical studies under Paderewski.

Mrs. E. W. Wilson, wife of Governor Wilson, of West Virginia; Miss Nan Wilson and Mrs. Donnelly, of Charleston, W. Va., are the guests of Mrs. Bland Spotswood Smith, at No. 301 East Grace Street. Mr. and Mrs. Price, with their daughter and niece, of Beauvoir, Miss., are also spending reunion week with Mrs. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton S. Brown, of North Carolina, are guests of Mrs. E. W. Wortham, at No. 111 East Grace Street.

Among the many distinguished visitors to the city at this time, no one is more warmly welcomed than Colonel John McAnerney, who, as colonel of the "Home Guard," composed mostly of clerks in the department, during the war, often defended this city and saved it from the daring raid of Kilpatrick. Colonel "Mac" now visits the city to meet his old friends and to revive the stirring and pleasant associations of former days.

Mrs. Blanche Claughton West, widow of Dr. George W. West, of Richmond, and her son, Mr. Claughton West, will be in Richmond for the reunion.

Mr. S. A. Cunningham, editor and proprietor of the Confederate Veteran, the official organ of every Confederate organization is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sam W. Meek, No. 412 West Grace Street.

Colonel A. B. Andrews, vice-president of the Southern Railway, arrived here yesterday afternoon in his private car from Raleigh, N. C., with a party of friends and fellow-soldiers to attend the reunion. Those in the party are Colonel L. Banks Holt, of Graham, N. C.; Captain Dilling, of Graham, N. C.; Dr. J. B. Dixon, State Auditor, Dr. D. E. Everett, Dr. V. B. Turner, Captain Miles O. Sherrill, Mr. A. B. Andrews, Jr., and Mr. S. B. Patterson. Colonel Andrews's car is parked at the Sanger Hall Station, Fourteenth Street, and his guests will live aboard it while in Richmond. Colonel Andrews has attended practically every reunion, and he was particularly anxious to visit Richmond on this occasion.

Mrs. W. H. Braithwaite, nee Della Buckhout, of Williamsburg, Va., is the guest of Mr. J. Staunton Moore, and any of her old "rebel" friends who are visiting will be welcomed by her at No. 2209 East Broad Street. She will be remembered as the girl who carried the Confederate mail during the Civil War and was arrested by General Key near Yorktown.

The merchants generally have manifested a liberal spirit in decorating for the great reunion, but worthy of special mention is the splendid and lavish adornment of the O. H. Berry & Co. building. Huge Confederate flags in great numbers float from the extreme top; then masses of national colors, set off at the bottom by great folds of Confederate bunting, draped in a most graceful manner.

At midnight last night a fair estimate of the visitors in Richmond, the number at 25,000, and several delayed trains had not pulled in at the depots at that hour.

Polk Miller and his quartet entertained the North Carolina contingent at Sanger Hall last night. The famous drum corps of Raleigh, which Major London says is the only surviving drum corps of the war, played "Dixie" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and other war tunes, for the further entertainment of the Tarheels.

Prominent among the Louisiana men in attendance upon the reunion is Judge J. S. Frossier, of New Orleans. The judge entered the Confederate Army as a member of the Washington Rifles, Ninth Louisiana Regiment, early in '61. He fought through the whole war. The judge is now a candidate for the office of Lieutenant-Governor of the sugar and rice producing State.

Jefferson county, W. Va., claims to have the largest county delegation in attendance upon the reunion. They came in from Charles Town about two hundred strong on special trains that came over the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Norfolk and Western roads. Colonel R. P. Chew, of the famous Stuart Horse Artillery, heads the delegation.

Far away Texas is expected to send a delegation of about fifty sons to the reunion, all uniformed and under direction of Commander Hillard, of Bush, Texas. They will probably have one hundred uniformed sons in the parades.

Among the camps arriving yesterday none attracted more attention and evoked more applause as they marched up Main Street from the Seaboard train than did a delegation from North Carolina, headed by a drum and fife corps of veterans, and every man wearing on his hat or his coat lapel a sprig of pine. It was a large delegation, and if any one doubted that they were Carolinians, or was unaware of the fact, the visitors lost no time in pointing it out. Everywhere they were greeted with "Hello, North Carolina!"

A West Virginia delegation of uniformed veterans, from Elkins, Lewisburg and other points, numbering about 150 men, arrived yesterday afternoon and paraded up Main Street, making a most creditable showing.

Delegations from Greenbrier county, W. Va.; Nelson county, Va.; Thornton-Pickett Camp, of Farmville, and from Winston, N. C., were among those arriving yesterday, and going to headquarters. Almost constantly marching camps of veterans were moving up Main Street amid cheers and attracting the attention of thousands of spectators along the route.

Judge Edmund Waddell, Jr., who has been sitting with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Asheville, N. C., is expected to arrive in the city this morning to attend the reunion.

Captain and Mrs. M. B. Pilcher, of Nashville, Tenn., are the guests of Mrs. N. V. Randolph at No. 611 East Franklin Street. Mrs. Pilcher is the State regent for the Tennessee Room in the Confederate Museum, and was elected president of the Tennessee Division, U. D. C., on the 17th of May, at the State convention at Columbia, Tenn. Captain Pilcher is a distinguished battle-scarred veteran, and it was known in the army as General Cheatham's fighting quartermaster.

Mrs. Alexander B. White, of Paris, Tenn., the popular retiring State president, U. D. C., is also the guest of Mrs. Randolph, and is of Mrs. Pilcher's party from Tennessee.

Mrs. Pilcher and Mrs. White have been invited to sit on the platform at the unveiling ceremonies of the Jefferson Davis Monument.

Miss Alida Aveline, sponsor of Loring Camp, from Palatka, Fla., is in Richmond for the Confederate Reunion.

Colonel Paul Sanguinetti, of Montgomery, Ala., delegate of delegates, No. 151, is one of the prominent veterans attending the reunion. For many years Colonel Sanguinetti has been associated with the Alabama National Guard and was a member of the Governor's staff from 1887 to 1890. He is on the staff of General Stephen D. Lee, and is a member of the finance committee, who will meet in the reading-room of the Jefferson Hotel this evening at 7 o'clock for the transacting of such business as may be brought before it.

Colonel T. B. Massie, commander of the Twelfth Virginia Cavalry, is staying with Mr. E. B. Thomason, No. 109 West Grace Street.

Colonel John W. Richardson, Registrar of the Land Office, has had three water-coolers placed in the basement of the Capitol for the benefit of reunion visitors.

Those coolers are filled regularly by Mr. W. G. Taylor, who is furnishing Ponticello lithia water free.

All the public buildings in the city, municipal, State and Federal, will be closed to-day, this being both a State and national holiday.

Most of the officials and clerks will take part in the memorial exercises at Hollywood, and will witness the parade of veterans.

Masses, John J. Terry, J. Churchhill Cooke and Gillie Brown, of the old Hanover Troop, Fourth Virginia Cavalry, are the guests of Justice Crutcher during the reunion.

How Schlitz beer is brewed, you would never buy any other.

You would see plate glass rooms, filled with filtered air, where we cool it.

You would see glass-lined tanks where we age it so long that it cannot cause biliousness.

How we filter it through white wood pulp. How we sterilize every bottle. How cleanliness is carried to extremes.

You would realize better how much purity means if you saw the methods we use, and the amount we spend, to attain it.

Ask for the Brewery Bottling. Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz. To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded

Mr. A. T. Ragland, No. 1510 Grove Avenue.

Former Governor W. A. McCorkle, of West Virginia, is at the Jefferson, being in attendance upon the reunion.

The Stonewall Brigade Band, of Staunton, with about twenty men, will arrive in the city Sunday, and will play in all the parades and concerts on Monday. Among the arrivals yesterday was Robert A. Hamilton, of Staunton, a war-time member of the band who still belongs to it. He and Charles E. Haines, of Staunton, are the only survivors of this historic band. Hamilton is still a young-looking, vigorous and handsome man.

The Stonewall Jackson Camp, of Staunton, Va., commanded by Commander T. A. Pace, arrived yesterday and brought down nearly 300 men. This camp has always been an active one, and will rank in personnel with any in the city.

Among those who will have a seat on the stand to-day at the unveiling of the Jefferson Davis Monument will be Rev. Dr. James B. Taylor, of this city, who was chaplain of the Tenth Cavalry, of W. H. F. Lee's Division, Stuart's command. Dr. Taylor compiled, for the use of the soldiers, a collection of hymns. It was published by the Virginia Baptist Publication and Bible Society, which supplied the Army of Northern Virginia with so many colored and religious books and tracts. The title was "Hymns for the Camp." The little book had an immense circulation and guided the worship of thousands. Copies are now very rare.

SIZE AND SHAPE OF BATTLEFLAG

Dr. Lewis Has Made Exhaustive Study of Subject—Distinguished Visitors.

The question of the proper shape and size of the Confederate battleflag is a matter now uppermost in the minds of the majority of the veterans assembled in Richmond to-day. Already complaints are being heard that many of the flags used in the decorations are not of regulation dimensions, and one group of indignant veterans even issued a card to their comrades denouncing the "fraud" and calling for action with reference to it.

However, the question is about to be settled once and for all. Dr. Samuel B. Lewis, of Washington, D. C., chairman of the committee on flags, United Confederate Veterans, reached Richmond yesterday, and has with him a sample edition of 1,000 copies of the report, which will be submitted to the convention for its approval. This report was adopted at the reunion in Nashville in 1904, but owing to the depleted condition of the treasury at that time, it could not be published at once. Moreover, great difficulty has been experienced in securing precisely the typographical effect desired in the publication. Recently this small sample edition has been run off, and if it is approved and the funds permit, it will be increased to many thousands and sold throughout the land.

Dr. Lewis has made an exhaustive study of his subject, receiving valuable assistance from General F. C. Ainsworth, then military secretary and now adjutant-general of the United States Army. Dr. Lewis discusses the entire subject at length, but lays especial stress upon the much-vexed matter of the size of the battleflag. He proves that the oblong flag now used is not the flag at all. It should be quite square.

The visit of Dr. Lewis is interesting for still another reason. He is commander of the Charles Broadway Rous Camp, No. 1191, United Confederate Veterans, of Washington, and is accompanied by a number of members of the camp, including the first lieutenant-commander of the camp, Major E. W. Anderson. It was the Charles Broadway Rous Camp which initiated the movement that has resulted in the proper care of the graves of Confederate dead buried in Northern cities.

way Rous Camp, of which Dr. Lewis was the chairman. This committee prepared a bill which was introduced in Congress by Hon. J. B. Foraker, of Ohio, in 1903. This bill asked for an appropriation of $100,000 for the care and preservation of Confederate graves in Northern cemeteries. As is usual in such cases it was referred to the War Department. In reporting it to Congress, Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of War, stated that the work could not be properly executed for such a sum, and recommended that the appropriation be increased to $200,000, which recommendation was accepted by Congress. Senator Foraker reintroduced the bill in 1904 and 1905. In President Roosevelt's message to Congress in 1905 he made special mention of the Confederate graves in Northern cemeteries, and recommended that suitable action be taken for the care of the same. The bill was finally enacted and became a law on March 9, 1906.

"From the beginning the Charles Broadway Rous Camp Committee had the active co-operation of the Confederate Southern Memorial Association and its president, Mrs. W. J. Behan, who through circular letters issued by her to the members of Congress, leading newspapers of the South, and personal letters to influential men in both sections of the country, compelled the attention of members of Congress to the necessity for the passage of the bill, which had been laid before Congress by the committee."
